Updates from Fr. Tim

For this week's column, I just wanted to provide a few updates to everyone. The first update is that I have now officially moved into the rectory at St. Mary. As of this writing, I started staying there over the Labor Day weekend. Of course, there's always a lot involved when someone is moving into a different residence. And this particular move, as these things often do, came together through many generous individuals giving of their time and energy. Whether it was cleaning things out, organizing various items, painting, handling some repair work, or just carrying some boxes, there have been many of you who helped make this happen. So, I just want to say, "Thanks!" to all of you.

There are still a couple of small things to do with the upstairs part of the rectory, but nothing major at this point. Eventually, we'll do some more work to the downstairs as well, with the hope of having a couple of guest bedrooms there for visiting priests or seminarians. But, for now, I'm happily getting settled in. And staying in Bethel gave me the opportunity to walk over for my niece's cross-country meet that took place at Bethel High School, which was an unexpected blessing that came with the new residence.

The second update is simply to let everyone know that I will be away from September 28 through October 2. I will be joining some brother priests on retreat in Maria Stein, in the northern part of the Archdiocese. The Church strongly encourages her priests to take an annual retreat – time to be more intentional with prayer, rest, and just deepening one's relationship with Jesus. This retreat with other priests from the Archdiocese will also give me time for greater fraternity with my brothers, something that I always look forward to. So, please keep me in prayer during this week (your prayers are always appreciated and very helpful to me). Know also of my prayers for all of you during this time away as well.

Finally, I wanted to let everyone know that we will have a seminarian doing his preaching practicum with us over the next few months. Deacon David Vest, a seminarian for the Archdiocese of Louisville, is required to preach at a parish for at least five Sundays as one of his courses in the seminary. We've had other transitional deacons (deacons who are preparing for priesthood ordination) do this in previous years, and I'm excited to have this opportunity again. As part of this arrangement, Deacon Vest will assist at Mass and preach the homily. He will then be evaluated by a small group of parishioners, who will offer their feedback to him. I will also provide an evaluation to Deacon Vest (and his professor at the seminary).

We have decided that Deacon Vest will assist and preach at the Masses at St. Peter and St. Mary on various Sundays beginning at the end of this month and going through the first weekend of December. He also hopes to be able to come back after the new year and join us for Mass, even when he's not preaching. So, again, I ask for your prayers – this time for Deacon Vest and his classmates, who continue their seminary formation with the hope of being ordained priests in late spring.

Reborn: Preparing for Baptism

Are you pregnant or have you recently had a child? The church encourages parents to baptize their child as soon as possible. Parents seeking information about the baptism of their child should complete the inquiry form on the Stella Maris Family of Parishes website two months before the desired date of the baptism. Once the form is completed, the coordinator of the baptism program will contact you with additional information and requirements. Parents desiring baptism for children seven years or older should contact the parish office.

Our first Family Faith event of the year, Unwrapping the Gift of Time, took place on Tuesday, September 8 in Stievenard Hall on the St. Bernadette Campus. Families enjoyed a “face the cookie” challenge before participating in a choose-your-own-adventure workshop which helped them create their own plans for how they will have a more restful, prayerful, and family-oriented Sunday.

Do you have photos from a recent event at Stella Maris?
Please share them by emailing rwilliams@stellamarisfamily.org for a chance to be featured in the bulletin!

I Have Called You Friends (Part II): Friendship with Others

In Part I of this series, I reflected upon Jesus' line, "I have called you friends" (Jn 15:15). I considered this as an invitation to divine intimacy (see the Sept. 6 bulletin). That particular element of Jesus' line sounds rather consoling. And it should be consoling because it is consoling. But there's a rather uncomfortable element as well, because friendship with God isn't a purely private affair. It's not exclusively vertical (God and me, me and God), but it has a horizontal element as well. And, because friendship with God involves other people, it's a rather challenging thing.

Let's look closely at what Jesus says in John 15. Here's the consoling line again: "I no longer call you slaves, because a slave does not know what his master is doing. I have called you friends, because I have told you everything I have heard from my Father" (v. 15).

Note the divine intimacy, which really comes out in Jesus telling us everything he's heard from his intimate relationship with the Father. But if we read one verse prior, we see this less-than-comfortable line: "You are my friends if you do what I command you" (v. 14).

In other words, there's a condition. We remain his friends by doing what he commands. What? I thought God loved us unconditionally?

He does. God loves us. That's the foundation. That's the given. But we can remove ourselves from his love; we can turn our backs on his offer of friendship by not doing what he commands. This is implied in v. 10: "If you keep my commandments, you will remain in my love." Keeping the commandments = remaining within loving friendship with God. Not keeping the commandments = falling out of friendship with God. Sounds a lot like vows, right?! Relationships depend on fidelity.

Okay, what does God command his friends to do? "This is my commandment: love one another as I love you. No one has greater love than this: to lay down one's life for one's friends" (v. 12–13). (Gulp!)

To remain in friendship with God (vertical element), we are to love one another (horizontal element) as he has loved us. How has he loved us? Well, he loved us to the extent of laying down his life for us, even when we had fallen out of friendship with him (see Rom 5:6–8).

What started out so consoling has become rather uncomfortable, because accepting Jesus' friends as our own can be difficult or even feel impossible at times. The Gospel is uncomfortably consoling, and these verses in John 15:1–17 are case in point.

On our own, loving others as he has loved us is, in fact, impossible. Some people are difficult to love, and plenty of people annoy us. If we're really honest with ourselves, there are some people we probably think are 100% unlovable or not worthy of the attempt, so filled are our hearts with contempt sometimes. Yet Jesus says, "love one another as I love you." Impossible! This is the point of Christianity. Loving perfectly is the call, and in our fallen humanity, it is impossible.

But not so fast. With God, all things are possible (cf. Matt 19:26). If we can open our own hearts to God's charity, his love for us, and begin to love our own selves in light of that love — if I can accept myself as one loved, uniquely, by God — then I can love even the most despicable person. Again, I'm not talking about my own love, or ability to love. My own love is often blind and wrongheaded and even selfish. No. Not with my own love, but with God's love. If God has said "yes" to me, and he's said "yes" to my enemy, then, if I can surrender resentment and forgive, I can participate in his "yes," too. If I can let go of my self-centeredness, then I can love my enemy, too. In this way, and only in this way, can I love others as he has loved them.

I'd like to close with a meditation from Ven. Madeleine Delbrel that perfectly illustrates this uncomfortably consoling scenario that comes to us in John 15:

"Lord, Lord, at least let this rind that covers me not be a barrier to you. Pass through. My eyes, my hands, my mouth are yours. This woman so sad before me: here is my mouth so that you can smile at her. This child is almost gray; he is so pale: here are my eyes so that you can look upon him. This man so tired, so very tired, here is my whole body so that you can give him my seat, and my voice so that you can say very gently to him: 'Sit down.' This boy, so smug, so foolish, so tough, here is my heart for you to love him with, harder than he has ever been loved" (Delbrel, The Holiness of Ordinary People, 82).

We must simply surrender. No biggie. Just let go and let him love others through you. That's all. And that's consolingly uncomfortable.

Attention Stella Maris Parish parishioners! The Respect Life Ministry is pleased to announce that, with the help of our local Knights of Columbus organization, the Cemetery of the Innocents will be erected at St. Thomas More Church on September 26 and remain for two weeks. The cemetery is a pro-life display that seeks to bring awareness to the widespread cases of abortions in our country. It will consist of approximately 300 crosses, with each cross representing 10 abortions that occur daily in the USA. Let us pray to God and ask for His forgiveness, mercy, and the healing of our country.
